Specialisms

While I carry out community development consultancy generally, I have developed three main specialisms: support for people and groups running community buildings, work with faith organisations and work in rural areas. ~The support for community buildings includes help with feasibility studies, business planning, funding strategies and implementation as well as support with issues such as asset transfer, leases and the general management issues. Services provided include research, vision setting, strategy planning and development, training and capacity building.

Work undertaken outside the voluntary sector

I have carried out contracts for local authorities, higher education institutions, RDAs and the Countryside Agency.

Work experience

I have worked in the voluntary and community sectors for thirty years as a community development worker, having managed a community development project in Scunthorpe for six years. I have worked as an independent researcher and consultant for twenty years. I have also taught in both further and higher education.

Geographical area covered

I work largely in Yorkshire and the Humber and in the East Midlands but will also work across the country.
